

Want to start music lessons this school year or take the flute back up after taking a break?

Cassie is a young, dynamic teacher with over fifteen years of playing experience and has been teaching both private and group classes since 2005. She teaches a variety of students, from elementary aged to adult, and from absolute beginners to students about to audition for conservatory. She emphasizes musicality and a healthy body practice in her studio and caters each student's lesson to their individual musical goals.

Half hour, 45 minute, and hour long lessons are available at Cassie's studio in the Greenwood neighborhood.

So if you're looking for a flute teacher, whether you're six or sixty, take a business card or check out her bio and recordings at www.cassielear.com.
